

Mrs. Dell's Fifth Grade Poetry

Inspired by Barry Wolverton's book, Neversink

So much depends upon
The Ruby-throated hummingbird
Quickly beating her wings
Teasing Egbert's overweight body.

By Emma

So much depends upon
The great beauty Sedna
Their vengeful sea goddess
Who Lockley must appease
Who's been there from the beginning of time
Who is no longer a human
As lonely as can be
That longs to have her fingers
Which are at the bottom of the sea
Which cannot comb her hair
Tricked by a magical thunder bird.

By Nadia

So much depends upon
A dangerous Spirit Journey
To please the goddess, Sedna
To resupply the fish.

By Christian

So much depends upon
A little hummingbird
Who's as brave as can be.
Her name is Ruby.
Ruby's wings beat a 1000 times per second
So brave and protective to an egg
So much depends upon her.

By Katie

So much depends upon
A library of ice
Holding very important information
Endangered in 10,000 years.

By Taylor

So much depends upon
The pygmy owl, Rozbell
Who poisoned the Great Grey Owl
To become the king.

By Mason

So much depends upon
The puffin named Lucy
Waiting for Lockley to return
In the place Neversink.

By Tiffany

Mrs. Dell's Fifth Grade Poetry

Inspired by Barry Wolverton's book, Neversink

So much depends upon
The tasty fish smidgeons
That Lucy the puffin
Was forced to make.

By Jack

So much depends upon
Lockley the good puffin
Trying to save Neversink
With biteweed for the Spirit Journey.

By Byron

So much depends upon
Lockley saving his colony
By finding Sedna
In the deep blue sea.

By Kendell

So much depends upon
Little Ruby the hummingbird
Buzzing like a bee
Always zipping around quickly
Little bit silly, little bit sarcastic
Never ever sitting down
Except on Egbert's shoulder.

By Gabby

So much depends upon
Sweet kind little Lucy
Forced into making fish smidgeons
Waiting for her dreams.

By Samantha

So much depends upon
The beautiful goddess, Sedna
Granting lucky animal's requests
Opening a new life
Her hair in two braids
Her nice dazzling smile
Charming everyone she meets
Starting new lives.

So much depends upon
A short stubby owl
Covered in tiny feathers
Flying on top of Feathertop.

By Christopher

By Shelby B.

Mrs. Dell's Fifth Grade Poetry

Inspired by Barry Wolverton's book, Neversink

So much depends upon
The very blubbery walrus
Guarding the puffin, Lucy's, large burrow door
From the small brown pigmy owl
Named King Rozbell
From taking that precious egg
That rightfully belongs to Lucy
And her brave husband, Lockley.

By Julia

So much depends upon
A huge feathered creature
Whose wings expand really far
And has very sharp claws.

By Jacob

So much depends upon
Lucy, a beautiful puffin
With colors like a toucan
Standing and waiting quietly.

By Bailey

So much depends upon
A small fat puffin
Short and very colorful
Next to a walrus.

By Alexis

So much depends upon
The Great Gray Owl
Posing on a rock
Getting poisoned by smidgeons.

By Brandon

So much depends upon
A rare unknown plant
That has hard thorns
To please the goddess, Sedna.

By Quinton